CROWDER COLLEGE ART STUDENTS HELP TORNADO VICTIM WITH SUPPLIES

Neosho, MO – After receiving word from a past Crowder graduate, now a Community Crisis Worker for The Ozark Center, about a young man who lost all his art supplies in the May 22nd tornado, Crowder College Instructors and students went to work. Art Instructor, Brianne Fulton, decided they could make a difference by replacing his art supplies. “When I told the students his story they immediately started taking donations to help him,” stated Fulton.

Pictured are representatives from the Fulton’s class along with The Ozark Center Community Crisis Workers who will deliver the package.
