Crowder College TDS Official OSHA Training Authorized

Webb City, MO - Crowder College Training and Development Solutions (TDS) is an official OSHA host site for Region 7. TDS will now have the ability to offer OSHA standard training in areas of construction, general industry, and healthcare. Three levels of professional designations in health and safety are also available.

Previously, one had to travel to Kansas City, St. Louis, or other areas out of state for this training. "We are happy to invest here to save area businesses thousands of dollars in travel costs," said Mark Plucinski TDS Safety Consultant. "These hands-on courses lead to certifications that allow graduates to improve overall company safety, prevent insurance cost increases to businesses, and provide corrective training to mitigate fines from OSHA enforcement inspections."

Missouri and Kansas are part of the Region 7 OSHA Training Institute (OTI) Education Center which is located at Metropolitan Community College in Kansas City, MO. According to osha.gov, "The OSHA Training Institute (OTI) Education Centers are a national network of non-profit organizations authorized by OSHA to deliver occupational safety and health training to public and private sector workers, supervisors, and employers on behalf of OSHA."

Crowder College TDS has provided the four states region with safety training for over two decades. For more information about OSHA classes or other training opportunities, contact Crowder College Training and Development Solutions at 800-783-8053 or go to www.training-development-solutions.org.
