

April 24, 2017

Office of Public Information
For Immediate Release

Crowder College Ag Division Compete at Nationals

Manhattan, KS – Twenty-two students from the Crowder College Agriculture Division competed at the North American Colleges and Teachers of Agriculture (NACTA) National Judging Conference. “Little Apple, Big Opportunities”, the conference theme, brought in over 800 contestants from across the country to Kansas State University, which competed in various judging events including Dairy Cattle, Equine Management, Crops, and Ag Communications. Madelaine Giebler (Seneca, MO), Crowder Ag Business major emphasized, “NACTA provided contests that were a great educational experience and opportunity for professional growth.

Competing at a national level was a positive reflection of the Crowder Ag Division.” The college was very well represented by the following students in their respective events.

AG COMMUNICATIONS – 2nd place team
Hannah Burgin (Garden City, MO) 2nd Individual
Madelaine Giebler (Seneca, MO) 4th Individual
Katy Brisco (Anderson, MO) 7th Individual

CROPS – 4th place team
Iris Wormington (Monett, MO)
Ben Greer (Marshfield, MO)
Tyler Ehlers (Anderson, MO)
Hunter Madison (Monett, MO)

DAIRY JUDGING – 3rd place team
Madelaine Giebler (Seneca, MO) – 2nd Individual
Will Johnson (Wyandotte, MO)
Ben Kromerie (Lebanon, MO)

EQUINE MANAGEMENT – 3rd place team
Likayla Stacy (Stockton, MO) – 8th Individual
Nicole Davies,
Jenna Waggoner (Lamar, MO)
Breanna Keeler (Purdy, MO)

HORTICULTURE – 4th place team
Mariah Poindexter, Carthage, MO- 4th Individual
Sabrina Walsh, Adrian, MO 8th Individual
Trinity Gray, Ash Grove, MO

